

PRESENTERS

Hazel Armstrong, Hazel Armstrong Law, Wellington

Hazel specialises in ACC, health and safety, employment law and professional ethics. She also has undertaken Inquiries on behalf of government and organisations, for example, KiwiRail and the Rail and Maritime Transport Union; the Minister for Tertiary Education; and in 2014, Hazel was part of a three-person inquiry into safety in the Forestry Sector. She has served on Boards as a ministerial appointee. Hazel sits on the New Zealand Law Society ACC Committee. In 2014, she was awarded the Lifetime Achievement Award at the New Zealand Workplace Health and Safety Awards.

Peter Sara, Peter Sara Lawyer, Dunedin

Peter graduated with LLB from University of Otago in 1978. His first law job was working in the litigation department of Haigh Lyon and Co, of Auckland and part of his job was to assist the senior partner Frank Haigh in ACC work, which was then in its infancy. Thus began Peter's experience in doing ACC work, including reviews and appeals. He set up on his own account as a sole practitioner in 1999 and has specialised in ACC work ever since, including being involved in making submissions on ACC law reform on behalf of the former District Law Societies and since 2009, the NZLS ACC Committee. Peter is the convenor of the Accident Compensation Committee.

AUTHORS

Molly McCarthy, Woodward Street Chambers, Wellington

In addition to her accident compensation practice, Molly McCarthy specialises in civil litigation, criminal law and judicial review. She has appeared in the Court of Appeal, High Court, District Court, and the Environment Court, and has represented clients in arbitration, mediation, and conciliation processes. Molly has also assisted Queen's Counsel on inquiries and advice to Cabinet. Prior to joining Woodward Street Chambers, Molly practiced as a junior barrister at Stout Street Chambers, and a solicitor in Russell McVeagh's litigation and public law teams. Molly is a volunteer lawyer at Wellington's Community Law Centre, and a member of the New Zealand Law Society's Accident Compensation Law Reform Committee.

Tiho Mijatov, Stout Street Chambers, Wellington

Tiho is a barrister with experience in both civil litigation and criminal law. He regularly appears in courts and tribunals around New Zealand. Before joining chambers, Tiho was a judge's clerk at the Court of Appeal, where he gained wide experience in civil and criminal law including in respect of pre-trial, conviction and sentence appeals, judicial review of administrative action, company disputes, environmental cases and regulatory and disciplinary matters.

Andrew Shaw, Lane Neave, Christchurch

Andrew is the Managing Partner and he heads the Employment Law Team. He has 28 years' experience and is recognised as one of New Zealand's top employment, ACC and health & safety law practitioners. Andrew is currently on the New Zealand Law Society ACC Committee, having previously been on the New Zealand Law Society Employment Law Committee (for six years), where he assists in providing guidance on proposed legislation. Andrew is a preferred legal practitioner for the New Zealand Law Society to refer vulnerable claimants for specialist and complex legal advice in his specialist areas. He is also a mentor for other law practitioners. Andrew is an experienced litigator and he has appeared in the Employment Relations Authority, Employment Court and ordinary Courts, including the Court of Appeal and advising on a Supreme Court appeal. Andrew also regularly participates in private and MBIE mediations.
