

PRESENTERS

Claire Charters, Faculty of Law, Victoria University of Wellington

Claire is a lecturer in public international, public law and indigenous peoples' rights. She holds a Masters degree in international law from NYU and has worked for the United Nations on human rights issues.

Chris Finlayson, Barrister, Wellington

Chris has been a barrister in Wellington since 2003. Prior to that he was a partner in Bell Gully for many years. He is a member of the Rules Committee of the High Court and has also served on the New Zealand Council of Law Reporting and the Council for Legal Education. Chris was a founding co-author of McGechan on Procedure and continues to write for that book.

Gerard van Bohemen, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade

Gerard has been a partner at Chen Palmers & Partners until 31 March 2005, specialising in public and constitutional law, international law and resource management and environmental law. From 1996 until 2003 he was a partner in the Auckland offices of Buddle Findlay. Before that, Gerard served for 14 years with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade. He was Deputy NZ Representative at the UN during NZ's membership of the UN Security Council in 1993/1994.

Gerard is rejoining the Ministry of Foreign affairs from 4 April 2005 and will take up the position of Director of the Ministry's Legal Division and International Legal Adviser later this year. However, this paper was prepared while Gerard was still with Chen Palmer & Partners and the views expressed in the paper and in the seminar on 13 April should not be taken as representing the views of the Ministry or the New Zealand Government.

The statements and conclusions contained in this booklet are those of the author(s) only and not those of the New Zealand Law Society. This booklet has been prepared for the purpose of a Continuing Legal Education course. It is not intended to be a comprehensive statement of the law or practice, and should not be relied upon as such. If advice on the law is required, it should be sought on a formal, professional basis.
